AA Grapevine Discussion: The Obsession To Drink

This month, we continue with AA Grapevine discussion questions. We highly encourage our readers to read the AA grapevine article relevant to the discussion, but it is not necessary to have read it or to be familiar with it. We are answering the questions based on our own experience with the hope that our answers will be helpful to our readers.

This month’s discussion questions are from July’s AA Grapevine issue, and are related to The Obsession To Drink.

Did you have a hard time with the obsession to drink when you first came into AA? What helped you? Did you make calls when you felt like drinking? What were some suggestions people gave you? Was prayer helpful? How about fellowship or literature? Are you sober a while and still struggling sometimes?

When I came into AA, I was two months sober. I don’t know if you could call it by choice, but there were extenuating circumstances that contributed to that two months of sobriety. I spent a week in the hospital, followed by 3 weeks of physical therapy at a nursing and rehabilitation facility, and then one month in rehab. So after two months of all that, I really didn’t have an obsession to drink, yet. I had been on this road before, where I was able to string together two or three months being sober. But what always happened is described in the Big Book on page 37, 'But there was always the curious mental phenomenon that parallel with our sound reasoning there inevitably ran some insanely trivial excuse for taking the first drink. Our sound reasoning failed to hold us in check. The insane ideal won out.' In the past, the insane idea always won, and I'd be off to the races again. At two months this time, I'm glad I followed my rehab councilors suggestion of going to at least 3 AA meetings a week once discharged from rehab.

I began feeling better attending AA meetings and working with a sponsor, but there were still life challenges that I hadn't faced sober and I would have to eventually face those. That's where suggestions from our members helped. All I had to do was ask the question on how they did it. One question I asked early on was how to get through the holidays. The first one I faced was Thanksgiving. While I wasn't too worried about that holiday, it was Christmas and New Years that really concerned me. I reflected on my past, and during those holidays I would take accrued vacation, then sit around and drink all day. So what was I going to do, with not working and a lot of time on my hands. What was I going to do when visiting the wife's family, who were five hours away and required a stay over. The members offered suggestions, to which I followed and I remained sober through those holidays. Those suggestions were to get to meetings, read the big book, call someone, and when out of town, find meetings and go to those, and always bring the Big Book to read as needed.

Another worry I had was going to grocery stores or gas stations. The only reason I went into those places was to buy liquor. Never mind needing actual groceries or gas. But now I needed to buy actual groceries and gas. How was I going to get past the liquor aisle in the grocery store or shot rack near the checkout in the gas station? Again, I asked the question. The members suggestions were to say a prayer for help. So began saying a prayer in the parking lot while in my car before I went into the store. It went something like, 'God, I need your help to keep me out of the liquor aisle. Allow me to pass by, get what I am truly there for and leave.' I don't remember what I actually prayed, but whatever I prayed, my higher power helped keep me sober and removed temptation. I made it out of the store with real groceries and prayer was working every time.

Chapter 5 title begins with 'HOW' which the acronym stands for Honesty, Open-mindedness, and Willingness. Early on in my sobriety and through today, honesty is the most important part of my life. But in addition, I had to be open-minded enough to know I didn't have the answers to my problems or situations and became willing to ask for guidance and help. I've never been misled by a member of AA by asking for guidance or help. Their shared experience always helped me, no matter what. Today, I can offer my experience to those who ask for advice with their struggles, it is up to them whether they follow our suggestions or not. I personally know following others suggestions has always made my life easier, one day at a time.

Tradition 7 Checklist

These questions were originally published in the AA Grapevine in conjunction with a series on the Twelve Traditions that began in November 1969 and ran through September 1971. The D18 newsletter committee felt that republishing these questions related to each tradition would help further the growth of individuals and groups in their understandings of the traditions, and might stimulate some dialogue. This month's questions reflect questions related to Tradition 6.

We continue in providing answers to some of the questions posed, to show how these traditions, which are some of AA's principles, can be practiced in all our affairs.

Tradition Seven: Every AA group ought to be fully self-supporting, declining outside contributions.

1. Honestly now, do I do all I can to help AA (my group, my central office, my GSO) remain self-supporting? Could I put a little more into the basket on behalf of the new guy who can't afford it yet? How generous was I when tanked in a barroom?

2. Should the Grapevine sell advertising space to book publishers and drug companies, so it could make a big profit and become a bigger magazine, in full color, at a cheaper price per copy?
3. If GSO runs short of funds some year, wouldn't it be okay to let the government subsidize AA groups in hospitals and prisons?
4. Is it more important to get a big AA collection from a few people, or a smaller collection in which more members participate?
5. Is a group treasurer's report unimportant AA business? How does the treasurer feel about it?
6. How important in my recovery is the feeling of self-respect, rather than the feeling of being always under obligation for charity received?

Answer to #1:

When I first came into AA, I didn't have a job or an income source. My wife was the bread winner in our household, and we just scraped by, month to month. As long as we did that, I was content. I was going to AA meetings, working with my sponsor, and trying to get better through working the program. So when I went to meetings, I could usually scrape up a buck. When I couldn't, I made a note to myself to contribute what I missed the next time I went to that meeting.

Early in my sobriety, there was a day meeting I used to go to where a guy I got to know never contributed. That didn't bother me as he was at a meeting and sober. What bothered me was the chair telling everyone they needed more than a buck to cover rent and coffee. I didn't drink their coffee as I brought my own and I contributed a buck for rent or whatever they used it for. I didn't like feeling guilty for only contributing a buck. But I kept going to the meeting as I needed all the meetings I could get in.

Eventually, I got a job that paid well. Then I ran across question #1 above. Over the years, I observed some who attended meetings didn't contribute, and it made me think that they might be scraping by as I was or maybe worse off than I was. Now that I am better off, maybe I can contribute a bit more. Every AA group meeting has helped me in some form or another, so now I could afford to toss in an extra buck or so, for the newcomer that didn't have anything to contribute. It was true that I had no problem forking over money for a fifth of this or that every day, so if my contribution helps maintain the group meeting, I benefit in the long run.

I honestly don't care who tosses money into the basket in a meeting or who doesn't. I am glad they are there as they might contribute something that will help me live sober today. I always have to remember there is a cost to hosting a meeting and there is a cost to keep AA running for everyone's benefit. If I don't contribute, I could lose what saved my life. But I don't have to bear the burden alone, we all contribute together to keep AA running.

JULY BIRTHDAYS

GRAPEVINE SUBSCRIPTIONS

Special note from D-18 GVR: If your home group has extra funds, please discuss during your group conscience whether your group could donate a Grapevine subscription to the Corrections Committee. Members take meetings and literature into correction facilities. It is a small way we can help change lives for the better. Grapevines destined for corrections can be dropped off at the CSO.

If you've thought of subscribing the Grapevine and have been putting it off, please consider subscribing and adding it to your sobriety tool kit. It's basically a meeting in a pocket, easy to carry with you and can provide inspiration when you need it. I've attached subscription forms at the end of this newsletter, and you can even gift a subscription to a friend.

Thank you,
